

As a veteran educator I believe a law or regulation's intent is of more importance than its technical unassailability to loop hole seekers. Our public airwaves have been marketed to the highest bidders for years now. For those same high bidders to flagrantly flaunt FCC regulations by compelling their local broadcasters to air dubiously factual partisan attack documentaries is counter to the intent and the letter of current regulations. This is my opinion and I would hope government, FCC, regulators would enforce current restrictions on free political advertizing for obviously partisan and powerful broadcast corporations.
